BUYING A PROPERTY

Planning & Building
Guidelines

What is the zoning of the property?

All properties are identified in the Shire's Town Planning Scheme by a zone. The zone directs how the land may be used, the standards for development, and when approval from the Shire is required.

You can find information about zoning and links to maps at:
www.plantagenet.wa.gov.au/local-planning-scheme.aspx

How do I know if utility services are connected?

The availability of working service connections for water, sewerage, electricity, telephone, NBN and gas can be requested from the selling agent or current landowner and verified with the service provider (Water Corporation, Synergy, etc.).

Are there any easements or covenants on the land title?

Individual properties may have restrictions on the land title, such as covenants, easements, memorials or notifications. This can affect how you can use and develop your property. Contact the selling agent or current landowner to find out more or apply online for a Property Interest Report at www.landgate.wa.gov.au

How do I know if the buildings are approved?

Contact the selling agent or current landowner to ask for copies of approved plans for all buildings on the property.

The current landowner can request copies from the Shire's records (or you can request with the landowner's consent). A fee applies for retrieving and copying building plans from archives.

Don't miss a thing! Remember to update your contact details with the Shire when you move.

What other requirements might apply to the property?

A property may also be designated with one or more of the following:

- Bushfire Prone Area - requires an assessment of bushfire risk for new development and may apply an increased construction standard.
- Building Envelopes - sets the area of a lot that can be developed.
- Heritage listing - may limit development of important heritage features.
- Special Control Areas - may limit land use and development for a special purpose (eg. within close proximity of an airport, or within an area of outstanding landscape values).

Please contact the Shire for more information about any of these requirements.
